DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-34 are allowed.
2. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The present invention is directed to a method of operating a wireless communication system including initiating a call from a first communications unit to a second communications unit, embedding a push-to-listen control protocol configuration in a data packet responsive to the call initiation, transmitting the data packet responsive to the call initiation, transmitting the data packet from the first communication unit to the second communications unit, configuring the second communications unit based on the push-to-listen control protocol configuration and transmitting automatic reconnect from the second communications unit to the first communications unit responsive to configuration of the second communications unit.

Claim 1 identifies the uniquely distinct features "embedding a push-to-listen control protocol configuration in a data packet responsive to the call initiation; and configuring the second communications unit based on the push-to-listen control protocol configuration."

The closest prior art, Chek et al., U.S. Patent Number 5,640,147 discloses a child monitoring device that includes a parent unit and a child unit, wherein upon enabling a command push button on the parent unit, the user of the parent unit can remotely monitor the sounds of the environment in and around where the child unit is located, thus remotely monitoring the child and without a need for the child to push any buttons. However, Chek fails to anticipate or render the above underlined limitations in combination with all the recited limitations of claim 1 obvious, over any of the prior art of record, alone or in combination.

Claim 15 identifies the uniquely distinct features "means to embed a push-to-listen mode control protocol configuration in a data packet responsive to the call initiation; and means to configure the second communications unit based on the push-to-listen mode control protocol configuration."

The closest prior art, Chek et al., U.S. Patent Number 5,640,147 discloses a child monitoring device that includes a parent unit and a child unit, wherein upon enabling a command push button on the parent unit, the user of the parent unit can remotely monitor the sounds of the environment in and around where the child unit is located, thus remotely monitoring the child and without a need for the child to push any buttons. However, Chek fails to anticipate or render the above underlined limitations in combination with all the recited limitations of claim 1 obvious, over any of the prior art of record, alone or in combination.

Claim 24 identifies the uniquely distinct features "computer readable code for embedding a push-to-listen mode control protocol configuration in a data packet responsive to the call initiation; and computer readable code for configuring the second communications unit based on the push-to-listen mode control protocol configuration."

The closest prior art, Chek et al., U.S. Patent Number 5,640,147 discloses a child monitoring device that includes a parent unit and a child unit, wherein upon enabling a command push button on the parent unit, the user of the parent unit can remotely monitor the sounds of the environment in and around where the child unit is located, thus remotely monitoring the child and without a need for the child to push any buttons. However, Chek fails to anticipate or render the above underlined limitations in combination with all the recited limitations of claim 1 obvious, over any of the prior art of record, alone or in combination.

Claim 34 identifies the uniquely distinct features "configuring the second communications unit with an emergency push-to-listen mode control protocol; and initiating a call to a first communications unit responsive to the configuring the second communications unit with an emergency push-to-listen mode control protocol."

The closest prior art, Chek et al., U.S. Patent Number 5,640,147 discloses a child monitoring device that includes a parent unit and a child unit, wherein upon enabling a command push button on the parent unit, the user of the parent unit can remotely monitor the sounds of the environment in and around where the child unit is located, thus remotely monitoring the child and without a need for the child to push any buttons. However, Chek fails to anticipate or render the above underlined limitations in combination with all the recited limitations of claim 1 obvious, over any of the prior art of record, alone or in combination.
